

Confidentiality

The University Counseling Center records are not included in any of your university records. All information about you, even acknowledgement of your visits, is confidential and cannot be released without your written permission.

There are exceptions to the confidentiality of your sessions and records:

- Clients and client information may be discussed within the University Counseling Center among staff and interns for the purposes of administration, supervision, and training as needed.
- Release of information outside the University Counseling Center requires your written permission with the following exceptions:
 - a. when there is clear and present danger to you or to others - includes potential suicide and/or homicide, and abuse of children, elderly, or persons with disabilities.
 - b. a court order is received which mandates the release of information.